2. In answer to [REDACTED] request for change of beneficiary, we have learned that in order to specify a beneficiary other than wife for unpaid compensation, Federal Employees Group Life Insurance, and retirement pay, it is necessary for the individual to complete the attached forms. In each instance the question asking "Department or Agency in Which Employed" should be left blank. This information will be supplied by Headquarters if and when needed. Witnesses should give a home address which reads other than the training site area. These specific forms should be signed in true name. In the case of the United Benefit Life Insurance and the War Agency and Employees Protective Association Life Insurance, the individual should draft a memo or letter for each policy in which he sets forth his beneficiary designations just as they were outlined in Cable 1604 (IN 01717). These memoranda or letters will be attached to the beneficiary forms which subject completed while in Headquarters and will take precedence over those forms. We have been informed that specifically designated insurance beneficiaries take priority over any statement covering such payment which may be made in a will. From this information it appears that no change in a will is necessary. This, of course, depends upon the specific will.

3. In answer to the question raised concerning the [REDACTED] eligibility for NSLI, we have been informed that they are not denied such NSLI simply because they are eligible for and covered by other Government insurance. This information comes from a reliable source who administered NSLI for several years. For possible courses of action, see page 4 of attached NSLI booklet. Veterans Administration here advises that if peculiar cases are involved, a V. A. representative should be consulted.

4. In regard to questions raised generally, each [REDACTED] must register with the Draft Board if he has not done so previously. This may be done through the mail.
